3. Stochastic Analysis Processes&Calculus with Applications Dr. Edeki Math Professor https://scholar.google.com/citations?user=5N1u2U4AAAAJ&hl=en			11am New York Time 8am Los Angeles Time 4pm West Africa Time 11pm China Time

IMPORTANT: These courses are mandatory for those of you applying for graduate studies in Finance, Economics, Financial Engineering, Quantitative Finance, Operations Research, Management Science, Electrical/Systems Engineering, and Applied Mathematics. To receive a recommendation letter from the institute in support of your graduate school applications, you will need a grade of B+ or better, ideally at least an A-. Students who did very well in these courses in the past have gone on to do well at graduate school, so ensure that you take advantage of these resources and lectures to master the concepts you will be taught. It will help a lot with graduate school work.

The minimum prerequisites for these courses are real analysis, multivariate calculus, linear algebra, differential equations, and mathematical statistics, as well as measure probability theory, expectations and moments in distribution theory, which all of you have thankfully been given exposure to.
